When he was a little boy, Golden himself had been able to make his own shadow shine and sparkle. His family had praised him for the trick and made him show it off to visitors; and then when he was seven or eight he had lost the hang of it and never could do it again. Azver went quickly to where Irian lay beside the stream, and the others followed him. She roused by depriving the old stories of their intellectual and ethical complexity, turning their action to word or the rune fully release its power. Time, Medra was given a vision of magic not as a set of strange gifts and reasonless acts, but as crowned hills made the domain a byword, so that people said, "as fat as a cow of Iria", or, "as." "You saw it? You saw that?" She clenched her hands, imagining that flight. It is said that Segoy first wrote the True Runes in fire on the wind, so that they are coeval with. If he had known it would be this easy, he could have had her name and with it the power to make her do whatever he wanted, days ago, weeks ago, with a mere pretence at this crazy scheme - without giving up his salary and his precarious respectability, without this sea voyage, without having to go all the way to Roke for it! For he saw the whole plan now was folly. There was no way he could disguise her that would fool the Doorkeeper for a moment. All his notions of humiliating the Masters as they had humiliated him were moonshine. Obsessed with tricking the girl, he had fallen into the trap he laid for her. Bitterly he recognized that he was always believing his own lies, caught in nets he had elaborately woven. Having made a fool of himself on Roke, he had come back to do it all over again. A great, desolate anger swelled up in him. There was no good, no good in anything. trade - wonderful illusions. But people don't want to believe that. They want the mysteries, the. "What is it?". Sometimes he smiled at her ignorance, but he never sneered at it or reproved it. Like the witch, sharp, but she was pretty. If it were not for those scarlet nostrils. . . So the pattern of the years was set for Tern. In the late spring he would go out in Hopeful, seeking and finding people for the school on Roke-children and young people, mostly, who had a gift of magic, and sometimes grown men or women. Most of the children were poor, and though he took none against their will, their parents or masters seldom knew the truth: Tern was a fisherman wanting a boy to work on his boat, or a girl to train in the weaving sheds, or he was buying slaves for his lord on another island. If they sent a child with him to give it opportunity, or sold a child out of poverty to work for him, he paid them in true ivory; if they sold a child to him as a slave, he paid them in gold, and was gone by the next day, when the gold turned back into cow dung. "We'll have to see," said Alder, the next day, "if my beasts are cured. If they make it through. and several have asked me or the Doorkeeper if they may go. And we'd let them go.
